

InvestEye Capital Partners inaugurated into men of honour corporate chaplaincy

Picture from L-R, Nana Osae Addo-Dankwa (CEO InvestEye Capital); Mr. Charles Tsagli, a Business Consultant; Dr. Mrs. Ellen Hagan (CEO, LAINE Services); Reverend Gabriel Ayodeji, the Country Director of Men of Honor (MOH)

InvestEye Capital Partners Limited, a wholly indigenous Ghanaian Investment Banking firm, has been inaugurated as a member of the Corporate Chaplaincy Group of Men of Honour (MOH).

Men of Honour is a non-denominational Christian Business Group that was founded on 16th March, 2002 by eight devout top-notch business executives whose vision is to raise a generation of Godly and faithful men and women in positions of authority in the marketplace. The group has grown steadily over the last 12 years and now has a membership that includes Chief Executive Officers of some notable corporate bodies in Ghana and beyond.

At an impressive ceremony InvestEye Capital Partners was welcomed as the newest member of the group. Some of the MOH members/CEOs who graced the occasion included; Elder Krobo Edusei (Chairman, Men of Honour and Executive Chairman, Safebond Africa Group); Dr. Mrs. Ellen Hagan (CEO, LAINE Services); Mrs. Akosua Djangmah (MD, Elite Kingdom); Mr. Ishmael Tetteh (CEO, Printek); and Mr. Ken Kpedor (CEO, RenaizanceSupply Chain). The programme was moderated by Mr. Charles Tsagli, a business consultant.

The CEO of InvestEye Capital, Nana Osae Addo-Dankwa, was officially Inducted as a MOH- eminent torchbearer and presented with a leadership bible as the recommended business textbook and tool, and a non-compromise and Godly pattern (NCG) flag. The flag is to symbolise a pledge to be a man of honour and an eminent torchbearer for Jesus in the Marketplace of business.

Mr. Addo-Dankwa in his welcome address mentioned that InvestEye Capital places the interests of investors at heart, and works hand in hand with its clients to develop their investment strategy by guiding them to their established goals through first understanding the diverse needs of their clients.

He implored the general public to cultivate the habit of investing; his advice to all potential investors is: "It is not how much you earn that makes a difference, it is how much you keep or save and are able to invest that matters; so all potential investors must start the habit of investing today".

Reverend Gabriel Ayodeji, the Country Director of Men of Honor (MOH), at the end of the successful inauguration ceremony urged all present to impact our generation positively by helping to reshape the marketplace through the power of Jesus' name.